LL3394

TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE

(For Address Only)

Buckingham Palace.—Built by Blore in the middle of the 19th century, and refaced by Sir Aston Webb in our own times. Originally there was no such façade towards the Mall, but only the two flanking buildings which it links, and in the centre of the forecourt between them stood the Marble Arch. It was only when Queen Victoria's growing family necessitated more nursery accommodation that Blore constructed this frontal building, whereupon the Marble Arch was moved to its present position in Hyde Park.

LONDON

Post card No. 5316.

From a Finlay Colour Photograph.

Raphael Tuck & Sons, Ltd.

Printed in England.

Copyright. London

C T P A 12, 9